

Entrenching Tool

National World War II Museum

Entrenching tools were used to dig foxholes (small areas dug in the dirt to provide protection from enemy fire), as well as to hide materials from enemy sight.